In Service to the Empire,

DAMA ANTONIA LOPEZ-HAWK
IMPERIAL SOVEREIGN OF ARMS

Sea Beasts in Adrian Heraldry

There are many different types of Sea Beasts that can be used in Adrian Heraldry I will talk about three here. To be through, I will also give an example of a Sea Beast that is NOT allowed in Adrian Heraldry I use "An Heraldic Alphabet" by J.P. Brooke-Little, Clarenceux King of Arms. pub. 1973, but have been a few revisions since this date. (Ref. 1)

I also use "Boutell's Heraldry" also by J.P Brooke-Little, Richmond Herald of Arms. pub. 1950, also with revisions since from date of publication. (Ref. 2)

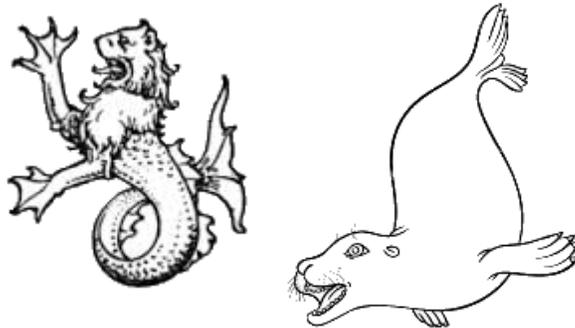

Sea Beasts are creatures that have the top half of a creature and the bottom half of a fish. J.P Brooke-Little states this in both books by listing the descriptions of each. The Fish " As the symbol of a name, almost all Fish have been used in heraldry; and in many instances Fish have been assumed in arms in reference to the produce of the estate, giving to the quaint device a two-fold interest." (2 pg. 79) ex. Azure, crusily-fitchy, two barbels hauriant embowed and addorsed Or, within a bourdure engrailed Gules (2 pg. 79) Give sample of a fish here (2)

Sea Beasts I found three different Sea Beasts;

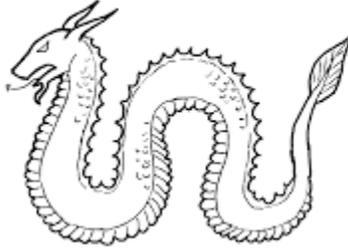

The Seadog;(1) A talbot with webbed feet, scales, and a dorsel fin. It can also be listed as, "a talbot with webbed feet, scales, a dorsel fin, and a rudder like an otter's." J.P Brooke-Little states that this used to be blazoned as 'hound marine' but that this term is no longer used (1 pg. 186)

The sea lion, upper body of a lion with a dorsel fin and the tail of a fish, different from the sea-calf

The sea serpent, the upper body of a serpent and a fish tail.

Also looks like a Lung Dragon

Ok, now for the NO. With all the awesome pirate movies popular, the Kraken has come up many times. The Kraken is basically a monstrous squid. Krakens are mythic beasts and have never been used in heraldry.

As always, do your homework before you turn in your device. Use a good search engine, books, the reference section of the local library.

ASK QUESTIONS, there are never any dumb questions when learning something new.
